Hollywood gossip, hot off the presses

LOVE being Lady Gaga. I love being me," the singer, née Stefani Germanotta, tells the March issue of Elle U.K. The 38-year-old, known for her daring looks, is almost unrecognizable with long brunette locks, a fringe of bangs and barely there eye makeup. After becoming famous in her 20s, the New York native tells the mag she's less interested in shock value — hello, meat dress! — than in inner peace. "I'm just trying to feel as in-my-skin as possible and not like I'm performing all the time," she says. "For me, I'm at a place in my life where I just want to feel like myself."

Fiancé Michael Polansky helped usher in this new era, the "Poker Face" singer reveals. "He used to say to me when we first met, 'You are a special human being when the cameras aren't on you. And I get to see that all the time.'" It Took the A Star Is Born actress some time to trust that she was enough. As she reveals in Elle, she was more accustomed to trying to avoid reality. "I used to drink a lot and smoke a lot, and I was always looking for an out," she explains. "I used to call it the trapdoor. I used to be like, 'I need an escape route.' And I stopped doing that. And I actually started feeling it. Being present." (She also admits she's worried people will think she's boring, "but honestly, thank God I'm boring. Thank God!")

With her seventh studio album, Mayhem, out March 7, Gaga will no doubt see her career go into overdrive. But she did hint that she and Michael are looking forward to starting a family, saying any children she has can be whoever they want. "I just want to let my kids find out who they are." *

Speaking Out

"Things are finally changing," Aubrey O'Day (left) said after Diddy's arrest. The rapper was caught on tape beating ex Cassie (right).

IT GETS WORSE!

Denying Everything

Diddy's rep said the allegations "lack context" and he wasn't given enough time to respond to the documentaries' producers.

SHOCKING NEW ALLEGATIONS!

ACCUSERS ARE COMING FORWARD WITH THEIR OWN CLAIMS ABOUT THE DISGRACED MUSIC MOGUL'S VIOLENT TENDENCIES.

Bad boy, indeed. With Sean "Diddy" Combs being held in a federal jail awaiting trial on racketeering, sex trafficking and other charges, disturbing new allegations about the music mogul's behavior are coming to light. In two new documentaries, the 55-year-old is painted as a violent drug user who abused multiple women. (In a statement, a rep for the rapper called the docs "irresponsible journalism of the worst kind" and "fabricated"; Diddy has denied all allegations.)

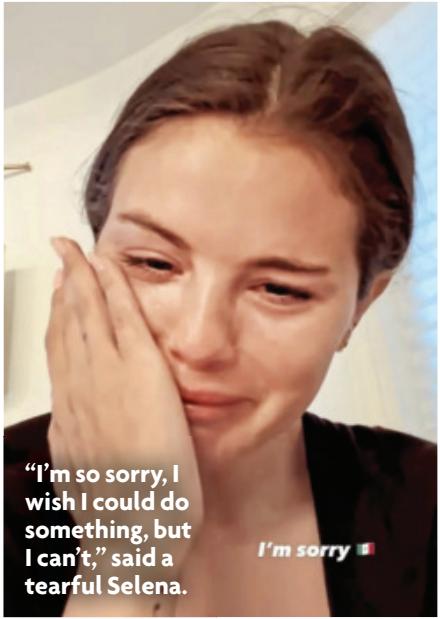

The "I'll Be Missing You" singer has already apologized for assaulting then-girlfriend Cassie in 2016 after surveillance footage from an L.A. hotel showed him shoving and kicking her. Now, in Peacock's Diddy: The Making of a Bad Boy, Mylah Morales, who worked for the star, details an incident that occurred in 2010. Morales alleges that Diddy, angry that Cassie had gone to a party, pulled her into another room. When she came out, Morales claims, she had "knots on her head, [a] busted lip, she was just beat up."

A second doc, Max's The Fall of Diddy, also contains shocking new claims. Kat Pasion, an ex, detailed a disturbing incident she said took place in 2021. Pasion alleged that Diddy forced himself on her while under the influence of drugs, then threatened to have her deported to her native Canada when she called him a "demon."

Others interviewed for The Fall of Diddy include his personal chef, who accused him of pushing her, and a classmate at Howard University, who says he witnessed him attack a woman with a belt. Danity Kane member D. Woods also appears to allege that the rapper sent "overtly pornographic" material to her bandmate Aubrey O'Day and fired her when she rejected his advances. After his arrest, Aubrey said she felt "validated," adding, "Today is a win for women all over the world." ★

"I'm so sorry, I wish I could do something, but I can't," said a tearful Selena.

I'm sorry

SELENA BREAKS DOWN

Selena Gomez deleted a social media post of herself crying about recent immigration crackdowns, but the clip has taken on a life of its own. In the video, the 32-year-old, whose paternal grandparents emigrated from Mexico, sobbed as she said, "All my people are getting attacked, the children. I don't understand." Bereft at mass deportations ordered by the new administration, she told her 422 million Instagram followers, "I don't know what to do. I'll try everything, I promise."

The backlash was swift, with one former political hopeful, Sam Parker, even demanding, "Deport Selena Gomez" because of her Mexican heritage. Among her defenders: "Fight the Power" rapper Flava Flav, who declared himself "Team Selena." "That woman is always so brave to share her truth," the 65-year-old posted. "And so many are quick to bully her." The Only Murders in the Building star responded to the hate in a since-deleted post. "Oh Mr. Parker, Mr. Parker," she wrote. "Thanks for the laugh and the threat." ★

HE HAS HER BACK!

A NEW ROYAL!

SHY!

Beatrice was forced to change travel plans after Christmas on medical advice.

She came early! Weighing 4 pounds, 5 ounces, Princess Beatrice's second child with husband Edoardo Mapelli Mozzi, 41, was born Jan. 22, weeks ahead of her spring due date. Buckingham Palace assured all was well, saying the pair were "delighted to announce the safe arrival of their daughter, Athena Elizabeth Rose Mapelli Mozzi." The palace also thanked the hospital staff "for their wonderful care."

The newborn is now 11th in line to the throne, behind her elder sister, Sienna, 3, and bumping 36-year-old Bea's younger sister, Eugenie, 34, down a notch. (Bea is also stepmom to Edo's son, Wolfie, 8.) The proud pop shared a sweet pic of the family's newest member, writing, "She is tiny and absolutely perfect. We are all (including Wolfie and Sienna) already completely besotted with her. Our hearts are overflowing." ★

KEVIN'S EX: ENGAGED TO HIS BEST FRIEND!

Ouch! It's one thing to be blindsided by the end of your marriage. It's another to have your ex move on with a good pal. Just 18 months after their union of two decades imploded, Kevin Costner's ex-wife Christine Baumgartner, 50, is engaged to their old neighbor, financier Josh Connor, 49. The new couple were first spotted together in July 2023 while on vacation in Hawaii, and Josh proposed on the beach near their home in Santa Barbara, Calif. Once again, a source tells Star, the Yellowstone actor, 70, was taken by surprise. "It's highly unlikely Christine gave him any kind of heads-up," says the source. After their acrimonious divorce — she receives $63,209 a month in child support for their three kids — they've tried to be "amicable," adds the source. "But Kevin has always been extremely sore about this romance. In many ways he's never gotten over it." ★

LIZZO 'I DID IT!'

Shape Shift

Lizzo said she was tired of “being the butt of the joke every single time because of how I look.”

Today when I stepped on my scale, I reached my weight release goal,” Lizzo recently posted on Instagram, alongside some sexy slimmed-down shots. “I haven’t seen this number since 2014.” The 36-year-old told her 11.6 million followers she’d lost 10 points on the BMI scale and 16 percent overall body fat. “Let this be a reminder you can do anything you put your mind to,” said the “Good as Hell” singer. “Time for new goals!”

For years, the Detroit native has been vocal about body positivity for women of every size. “It’s hard because self-love and self-confidence is a personal journey,” she’s said. “You’re never gonna believe it until you believe in yourself.” Even now, she admits she still feels judged. “I will still be considered morbidly obese on the BMI and little bros on the internet are still going to call me ‘big backed,’” she said. “But I will be happy.”

When she first revealed her weight loss a few months ago, the “About Damn Time” singer — who faced backlash after her tour dancers accused her of bullying — was accused of using drugs to shed pounds. Denying she’d taken Ozempic or Wegovy, Lizzo attributed her slimsdown to months of weight training and “calorie deficit.” *

SAM'S 'WEIRD' LIFE WITH BRITNEY

In a surprising new interview, Sam Asghari opened up about what it was really like to be married to Britney Spears. The 30-year-old told Kate Hudson and her brother Oliver's Sibling Revelry podcast that he expected that being wed to the pop princess, 43, would be a challenge because of her fame. What he wasn’t expecting was what it would be like living under the conservatorship that ruled her daily life from 2008 to 2021. The Traitors star called it “the weirdest thing to deal with” in their relationship, which lasted from 2016 until their 2022 split. The Iranian immigrant questioned how his wife’s basic rights — even her control over her own reproductive system — had been put into the hands of her father, Jamie Spears. “I was like, wait a minute. Like, I thought I’m in America. What do you mean?”

The model was harsh in his assessment of the “Toxic” singer’s family, accusing them of taking advantage of Britney. “They think you owe something to them,” he told the hosts. Sam, who doesn’t receive spousal support, said he instead tried to “provide information” to Brit on how she could fight the conservatorship “and really try to understand why” it even happened. *

J.LO: HUMILIATED AGAIN!

Her new movie, Kiss of the Spider Woman, may have received a standing O at the Sundance Film Festival, but Jennifer Lopez is still feeling a sting. The Atlas actress was recently nominated for a Golden Raspberry Award (a.k.a. a Razzie), which celebrates the worst in film in 2024. Even more of an ego blow, the diss comes on the heels of a series of big failures for the 55-year-old, from critics bashing her self-produced film This Is Me... Now to being forced to cancel tour dates due to low sales. (J.Lo told fans she was spending time with her two kids, "family and friends.") "Jennifer is taking it very badly," a source tells Star of the dubious honor. (She's in good company: Both Sandra Bullock and Halle Berry took home the prize!) "At this point, she feels like she can't catch a break. Last year was by far the toughest of her life."

The insider says the "Let's Get Loud" singer is especially humiliated by the Razzie nom in the wake of the collapse of Bennifer 2.0, her split from Ben Affleck after just two years of marriage. Says the source, "Her ego is crushed." ★

Jennifer has said she "sobbed" the first time she read the script for the sci-fi epic Atlas.

And the Oscar goes to... not Angelina Jolie! An insider tells Star that failing to get a nomination for playing opera diva Maria Callas in Maria has left the 49-year-old more determined than ever to leave Hollywood. "She put her heart and soul into this awards season," the source tells Star. "And the snub has left Angelina with an incredibly bad taste in her mouth."

For years, the mom of six has said she prefers to live abroad, blaming ex Brad Pitt and their protracted divorce and custody battle for forcing her to live stateside. "Even though the kids aren't on good terms with Brad these days," adds the insider, "he still has visitation rights with the twins." (At 16, their youngest kids are the only minors remaining in the brood.) "It's Angie's firm belief the family would be happiest abroad." Another factor fueling the Oscar winner's need to leave: Her estranged father, Jon Voight, has just been named a Hollywood

New Chapter

Taylor worked through her Joe heartbreak via song — and then moved on with Travis Kelce.

CLEAR

Taylor & Joe: SECRET MEETING!

Joe Alwyn is hoping for some closure with his ex, Taylor Swift.

What went wrong? An insider reveals that nearly two years after their breakup, Joe Alwyn has plans to meet up with Taylor Swift. “He wants to clear the air and find some closure. Joe wants to resolve some lingering issues and finally shut the door on the past.”

Since they parted ways in April of 2023, the actor, 33, and his ex, 35, have remained mostly tight-lipped about the split, which happened amid engagement buzz after six years of dating. But while Taylor notoriously channels her romantic grief into song — and reportedly devoted several tracks off her latest album to Joe-induced heartache — Joe has struggled with the fallout, admitting in a rare interview about the breakup last year that it was “a hard thing to navigate.”

Joe has since insisted he’s “in a really great place,” but the insider reveals that he’s “struggled with different emotions” regarding his A-list ex, and hopes for a sit-down. “He just wants to get a better understanding of why it didn’t work out between them,” adds the insider.

He may not find his closure. Taylor, who’s famously moved on with NFL star Travis Kelce, “is resisting” a postmortem meetup, says the insider. “She expressed her feelings in her album and got a lot out of her system, and she just thinks it’s better to keep distance from exes. David's MEDDLING FRIEND!

She's got some Friend-ly advice. An insider says that Jennifer Aniston is nudging her longtime castmate on the hit sitcom, David Schwimmer, to "date someone his own age" ever since the actor, 58, started seeing 29-year-old med student Eliana Jolkovsky. "Jen can't help but meddle," says the insider. "David means a great deal to her — and they did have a little flirtation going in the beginning of Friends, but that's not what this is about. She thinks he keeps repeating the same mistake and doesn't want to see him hurt." David, who divorced Zoë Buckman — an artist nearly 20 years his junior and mom to daughter Cleo, 14 — in 2017, "seems to lurch from one relationship to another," says the source. "Jen urges him to take care and date someone older." Not that David minds the interference. "She doesn't get in his face," notes the insider. "She does it in such a way that he can't be offended. He's helped her with her romances, and he knows Jen's only looking out for him because she cares." ★

Olivia's NEW GUY!

She's finally moving on. Olivia Wilde was recently spotted looking romantic with fellow actor Dane DiLiegro, and a source says the new relationship is the first one that's "clicked" for the 40-year-old since she dated Harry Styles. "She's cautiously optimistic that it's got the potential to last." The Don't Worry Darling actor/director took a long time to get over Harry — whom she dated for two years following the implosion of her eight-year engagement to Jason Sudeikis — and was wary of dating, says the source. "Everyone knows how in love she was with Harry. Even now she's pretty scarred by it." That began to shift after she met the Werewolves star, 36, a few months ago through mutual pals. "She's impressed by his intellect, ambition and talent," says the source. "She waited patiently for 'Mr. Right,' and thanks to her strength and resilience, things are going well." ★

Ben Stiller and Christine Taylor rekindled their marriage in 2022 — five years after announcing they'd separated — and this time, they're all in. Ben, 59, recently revealed how he and Christine, 53, who wed in 2000, have a new appreciation for each other. "Because you know it could go away," the Severance producer explained. "And that, to me, is the gift for our relationship." The power couple, parents to Ella, 22, and Quinlin, 19, reunited during the pandemic, with Christine revealing that they found their way back to each other while hunkering down in the same house. "We had so much time to talk," she shared. Now, says a source, they're closer than ever. "They'll always have each other's backs, and there's peace knowing that. It's good for the kids, it's good for them." ★

FACING NEW CLAIMS

"Jen hates having to fend off these rumors" about her relationship with Barack amid reports that his marriage to Michelle has crumbled, says a source.

UNWELCOME ATTENTION

"Behind the scenes, Barack is probably flattered to be linked to Jen," says a source. The actress denied any dalliance to Jimmy Kimmel (top), while Michelle's absence from Jimmy Carter's funeral (above) and the inauguration raised eyebrows.

JEN, BARACK & MICHELLE – THE SCANDAL EXPLOD

OLD RUMORS THAT BARACK OBAMA IS HAVING AN AFFAIR WITH JENNIFER ANISTON RETURN WITH A VENGEANCE AFTER MICHELLE OBAMA SKIPS TWO MAJOR POLITICAL EVENTS.

THE rumor seemingly came out of nowhere. In late July, a magazine cover blared “The Truth About Jen and Barack,” addressing speculation that Jennifer Aniston and former President Barack Obama were having an affair behind his wife Michelle’s back. “The goss is... Michelle and Barack are living separate lives, and Barack is fking Jennifer Aniston,” one podcaster said, noting that the story “obviously could be made up.” A month earlier, a Reddit user had asked, “Anyone else hear that Obama and Jennifer Aniston are fkin?”

The “goss” got so much traction that Jen was forced to publicly deny any untoward relationship with the former leader of the free world, 63. “That is absolutely untrue,” the Friends star, 56, insisted in an October visit to her pal Jimmy Kimmel’s late-night show. “There is no truth.” An insider tells Star Jen was “appalled” by the rumors and thought the show would provide a “safe haven” for her to stop them. It worked—for a time. But when Michelle, 61, failed to attend two high-profile events with her husband of 32 years in January—former President Jimmy Carter’s funeral and President Donald Trump’s inauguration—whispers of marital discord exploded. “There have been rumblings for months of trouble in their marriage,” says the source. “There’s little doubt they’ve been living separate lives.”

FEVER PITCH

Unlike Jen, the Obamas haven’t engaged in the drama. In fact, it’s been business as usual for the pair, who exchanged sweet messages on social media on Jan. 17 as Barack wished his wife a happy birthday: “You fill every room with warmth, wisdom, humor, and grace—and you look good doing it. I’m so lucky to be able to take on life’s adventures with you. Love you!” She responded, “Love you, honey,” with heart and kissy-face emojis.

LESSONS LEARNED

Michelle has confessed that her relationship with Barack “has never been perfectly 50/50” and shared how important it is to realize that marriage entails “long stretches of discord and discomfort.”

D.C., to L.A., however, have continued to report on a potential split. Former View host Meghan McCain opined on the Jan. 22 episode of her Citizen McCain podcast, "Very serious journalists telling me that they're hearing that the Obama divorce rumors are true." Her guest, Tara Palmeri, a senior political correspondent for Puck, concurred: "I've certainly heard it for a while, even before Michelle said she wasn't coming to the inauguration."

Other insiders continued to connect the former commander in chief with the Morning Show star. Instagrammer Jessica Reed Kraus even claimed on her Substack that she'd received a direct message with very specific information. Barack, her follower alleged, "is with Jennifer Aniston. My old manager, now a friend, is connected to her inner circle. At a gathering with Jennifer's friends, the affair came up casually. Jennifer herself admitted it. They were sitting with a psychic, which makes it sound surreal, but it's definitely not a secret among her closest friends."

COMMON THREADS

The actress has admitted she and the Obamas are not strangers. "I've met him once. I know Michelle more than him," she told Jimmy in October. She donated $2,300 to the former POTUS' presidential campaign in 2007 and appeared alongside him and other stars in a "We Can End Gun Violence" PSA in 2015, following a mass shooting. And Jen and Michelle both appeared on Ellen DeGeneres's talk show on her 60th birthday, in 2018.

POLITICS & DRAMA

Once apolitical, in recent election cycles Jen has been more vocal. In 2016, she attended a fundraiser for Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Clinton; and in October, she announced she'd "very proudly voted for Kamala Harris" for president. "She's long admired the work Barack has done," says the insider, "and how he led the country and what an eloquent speaker he is."

Meanwhile, the former president has spent more time in entertainment circles since he and Michelle left the White House in 2017. In 2018, they founded a production company, Higher Ground, which released an Oscar-winning documentary, and inked a lucrative Netflix deal (recent projects include the 2023 Julia Roberts thriller Leave the World Behind). Their daughters also live in L.A.: Harvard-educated Malia, 26, is a writer-director; Sasha, 23, graduated from USC in 2023. "Barack has a lot of A-list friends and enjoys a bit of the spotlight himself," reveals the source.

Which may be why he's not denying the talk. "Word around town is the

THE OBAMAS' LOVE STORY

OFFICE MEET-CUTE

In 1989, Barack met Michelle Robinson when she was assigned to be his mentor at the Chicago law office where they both worked. "I went to Harvard and he went to Harvard, and the firm thought, 'Oh, we'll hook these two people up,'" Michelle told ABC News in 2008.

WEDDING BELLS

After two years of dating, the future POTUS proposed to his future FLOTUS in 1991, surprising her with a ring during a dinner meant to celebrate his passing the bar exam. They wed in Chicago a year later, in 1992, and shared their first dance to Stevie Wonder's "You and I."

PARENTHOOD JOYS

Two years after Barack began his political career in the Illinois State Senate, he and Michelle — who suffered multiple miscarriages and underwent IVF treatments — welcomed their first child, Malia, on Independence Day in 1998. Sister Sasha arrived three years later, in 2001.

WHAT'S NEXT FOR JEN

Lily, Dolly and Jane took back their power in 9 to 5; Jen hopes Zendaya, Sydney and Ariana will do the same in the remake.

As speculation about her personal life continues, Jen is focusing on work. She wrapped filming on season 4 of her hit Apple TV+ series The Morning Show — which she also produces — in December. The Horrible Bosses star is also developing a fresh take on the iconic 1980 workplace comedy 9 to 5: Last year, it was confirmed that she will coproduce the project, which is being written by Juno screenwriter Diablo Cody, 46. The original movie starred Dolly Parton, 79, Jane Fonda, 87, and Lily Tomlin, 85, as colleagues who get revenge on a boss from hell. According to a Jan. 20 report, Jen's on a mission to recruit top female talent — Zendaya, 28, Sydney Sweeney, 27, and Ariana Grande, 31, are said to be "at the top" of her list — to act in the new version, in which she might also appear.

name 'Jennifer Aniston' keeps coming up in Barack's circle," says the source, noting, "It doesn't mean something is happening, but it would make sense if he wanted something to happen." Jen's rep has called such speculation "complete nonsense," and Jen worries how it will affect her career. Says the source, "There's a part of her that resents being painted as the home-wrecker, considering what she's faced in the past."

After all, she's been on both sides of affair scandals. Years after her 2005 divorce from Brad Pitt, 61, the Fl star and future ex-wife No. 2, Angelina Jolie, 49, both admitted they "fell in love" while shooting Mr. & Mrs. Smith while he was still married to Jen, a betrayal that has haunted her. Later, the Lola Vie haircare founder had to battle accusations that she stole her Wanderlust costar Justin Theroux, 53 — her husband from 2015 to 2018 — from his girlfriend of 14 years, Heidi Bivens, 48. "Nothing happened on that movie," Jen told Good Morning America in 2012, insisting, "We were just friends."

MARATHON MARRIAGE

The claims that the Emmy winner is more than that with the ex-prez are "annoying" to Michelle, says the insider. Since leaving D.C., the Princeton and Harvard-educated attorney has been focused on reclaiming her life apart from her husband.

"She was never that interested in politics," says the insider. "She did her part supporting Barack during his presidency, and now it's her turn to shine. The kids are grown and more independent, and now she wants to live her life." She's never denied that her relationship is far from perfect. "I don't want people looking at me and Barack like, 'hashtag couple goals,'" she said in 2024, "and not know that, no, no, there are some broken things that happen even in the best of marriages." She added, "It's the choice to figure it out, not to quit when it gets hard." ★

MAKING HISTORY

The U.S. senator from Illinois won the 2008 presidential election, becoming America's first Black commander in chief. After his 2009 inauguration, they moved into the White House, along with Michelle's mom, Marian Robinson, who helped care for her granddaughters.

BESTSELLING BOOKS

The couple signed a joint book deal worth a reported $65 million in 2017. Their ensuing publications — 2018's Becoming, from Michelle, and 2020's A Promised Land, from Barack — are among the best-selling memoirs of all time.

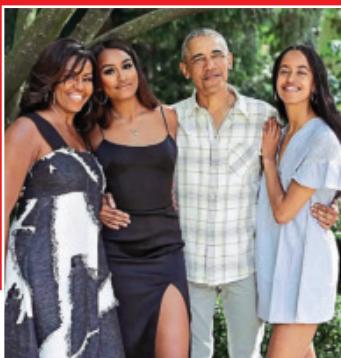

ALL GROWN UP

The Obamas — who own homes in Washington, Chicago and Martha's Vineyard, Mass. — celebrated Sasha's graduation in L.A., where she and her sister live. "It feels good to know that the two girls you raised find solace at a kitchen table with one another," Michelle said.

LEAVING THE WHITE HOUSE

As the 44th president and his first lady moved out of the White House in 2017, Donald and Melania Trump moved in. Following eight years of strict security protocols, Michelle quipped, "I want to go to Target again!"

Cyrus Family AT WAR!

AS BILLY RAY CYRUS APPEARS TO SPIRAL OUT OF CONTROL, HIS FAMOUS CHILDREN ARE TURNING AGAINST EACH OTHER.

TENSIONS RISING

Trace (left) says his dad threatened him with legal action after he pleaded with him to get help on social media. "You should be ashamed of yourself," Trace wrote. "I will always love you but I no longer respect you as a man."

SAD SIGHT

"He seemed inebriated," a source says of Billy, who sparked concern following an unhinged stage performance at the Liberty Ball on Jan. 20.

T was painful to watch. On Jan. 20, Billy Ray Cyrus took to the stage at the Liberty Ball in Washington, D.C., to celebrate President Donald Trump's inauguration and perform. After facing technical difficulties with his microphone and guitar, the bedraggled-looking singer sang a few scratchy verses of his 1992 hit "Achy Breaky Heart" before walking off. "He was behaving strangely," says a source, "and acting belligerent with his crew." The appearance sparked concern from fans and from Billy's son Trace (Billy Ray adopted the 35-year-old, along with his sister Brandi, 37, when he wed ex-wife Tish; the couple also share Miley, 32, Braison, 30, and 25-year-old Noah), who took to social media two days later to express concern over his dad's health and state of mind. "It seems this world has beaten you down and it's become obvious to everyone but you," Trace wrote, adding, "You're not healthy Dad & everyone is noticing it... I hope you realize this message only comes from a place of love and also fear that the world may lose you far too soon."

The message was not appreciated. Three days later, Trace went public with his claim that Billy had told a family member he planned to take legal action against his own son "for encouraging him to get help." It's just the latest rift for the once close-knit family that has become completely fractured. "Billy Ray's been estranged from Trace, Brandi, Noah and Miley for quite some time," a source tells Star, noting that Billy and Tish — who split in 2022, after 28 years of marriage — aren't on speaking terms either. Miley, meanwhile, is at her wits' end. "She gave up on her dad years ago," the source adds. "She hates seeing him this way and is concerned about him like everyone else; but she also knows changes have to come from Billy Ray himself."

TROUBLED STAR

The problems have been a long time coming. The Kentucky native shot to fame in the early '90s and enjoyed massive success alongside Miley on Hannah Montana for four seasons between 2006 and 2011. He became so focused on his career and Miley's trajectory, says the source, he neglected his other kids. "He didn't have a whole lot of time for them."

As Miley's own star began to eclipse his, he struggled — as did his marriage to Tish. He was reportedly unfaithful ("I didn't even know... how much disrespect there was in my marriage," Tish said last February, after getting remarried to Prison Break actor Dominic Purcell in August 2023). Both she and Billy Ray filed for divorce over the years before their final split. As Star previously reported, Miley was resentful over how her dad treated Tish. "Miley hasn't gotten over the disrespect she feels Billy Ray showed Tish and the family," the source said. Most of the sibs took Tish's side after the split, and Billy Ray became even more estranged from his kids during his ill-fated seven-month marriage to musician Firerose in 2023. "When Billy hooked up with Firerose, his relationship with his kids was further damaged," says the source. "Billy Ray can be so stubborn. He can't seem to understand that he's part of the problem." (In their contentious divorce, the Aussie singer claimed that Billy Ray's "persistent drug use" and marijuana consumption made him "unpredictable and volatile.")

ROCK BOTTOM

The singer has admitted to substance abuse in the past. "[There] was an excess of alcohol," he recalled in 2024 of the early days of his career. "It was a pretty rough time." While he'd quit booze and cocaine, he said, he still allows "a little puff every now and then of marijuana."

Braison — who's working on a new album with his father — appears to be the only one on decent terms with Billy, saying Jan. 25, "I don't have any bad feelings towards anyone in my family." But his loyalty is causing tension with his siblings, especially Trace. "Braison and Trace may have grown up in the same family, but they each have a different relationship with Billy Ray," says the source. "Trace thinks Braison's an enabler and only cares about the new album, and that he should wise up and get their dad some much-needed help."

Not that they think he'll listen. "They know Billy Ray probably won't do anything about his issues until he hits rock bottom," says the source. "But they pray he gets the help he so desperately needs." *

LOOKING BACK

"There was no scandal, nothing went wrong," the Hollywood Squares star has said of her 2016 divorce from Will Kopelman, adding, "[But that] makes it harder and more confusing, because there isn't the thing to point to."

DREW BARRYMORE:

DEST

GETTING REAL

Drew opened up about her difficult divorce with guests Joy Behar and Susie Essman on a recent episode of her show.

MOVING FORWARD

"Drew and Will get along great now, and she should feel proud of what they've been able to accomplish after divorce," says an insider. "She will always care for him."

DIVORCE ROYED ME

NEARLY 10 YEARS AFTER THE END OF HER MARRIAGE, THE DAYTIME HOST OPENS UP ABOUT THE DEVASTATING TOLL IT TOOK ON HER.

KNOWN for her just-between-us-girls vibe on her daytime talker The Drew Barrymore Show, Drew Barrymore got real when discussing her 2016 divorce from Will Kopelman—with recent guests Joy Behar and Susie Essman. Opening up about her heartbreak, the mom to Olive, 12, and 10-year-old Frankie confessed that the split “destroyed” her, admitting that she still hasn’t “fully recovered” from the demise of her four-year marriage to the art consultant—and of her dream to have a secure family unit, lamenting, “I was so invested in that plan.”

While Drew has been enjoying a career resurgence since the chatfest debuted in 2020, her personal life has been less sunny. “Drew went through a painfully dark period when she and Will split up,” an insider tells Star. “There was a lot of guilt because she wanted to give her kids the kind of childhood that she never had, with two parents living together in a happy home.” Post-divorce, the former wild child even reverted to her self-destructive ways. “She felt like a failure,” adds the source. It’s taken years for her to overcome the loss and to build a new relationship with her ex—who welcomed a child with new wife Alexandra Michler in 2023. Says the insider, “They’re both in a better place now, and they understand each other better, too.”

‘CRIPPLINGLY DIFFICULT’ SPLIT

It had been an odd match. Drew was a child of divorce who first went to rehab at age 13, while Will, 46, was from a socially prominent NYC family, his dad the president of Chanel. The actress, 49, admitted that the man who became her third husband appealed to her “pragmatic” side, saying in 2015, “He was someone who was always reachable on the phone, someone who was a classy human being, someone who has this incredible blueprint of a family that I don’t have.”

Her own family was illustrious—her grandfather John Barrymore and his siblings, Lionel and Ethel, were silver screen icons—but troubled. John drank himself to death; Drew’s aunt Diana Barrymore abused alcohol and drugs; and her father, John, also battled alcoholism. Drew’s childhood was chaotic, with her mother, Jaid, dragging her to nightclubs when she was still just a child. In her autobiography, Little Girl Lost, the former child star admitted to drinking at just 9 years old, smoking pot at 10, and using cocaine by 12.

After multiple rehab stints, the divorce triggered her. The Charlie’s Angels star told one interviewer that she leaned on alcohol during the “cripplingly difficult” time. “I was just trying to numb the pain and feel good—and alcohol totally did that for me. The drinking thing for me was a constant, like, ‘You cannot change. You are weak and incapable of doing what’s best for you. You keep thinking you will master this thing, and it’s getting the better of you.’”

Ultimately, she got sober by 2019—and being open about her devastating divorce helped. “Talking about it has been cathartic for Drew,” says the insider. “She hopes that by speaking out she might help other women going through the same thing.” The insider adds, “She’s gotten some great advice that way, too. It’s like free therapy.”

A NEW LIFE

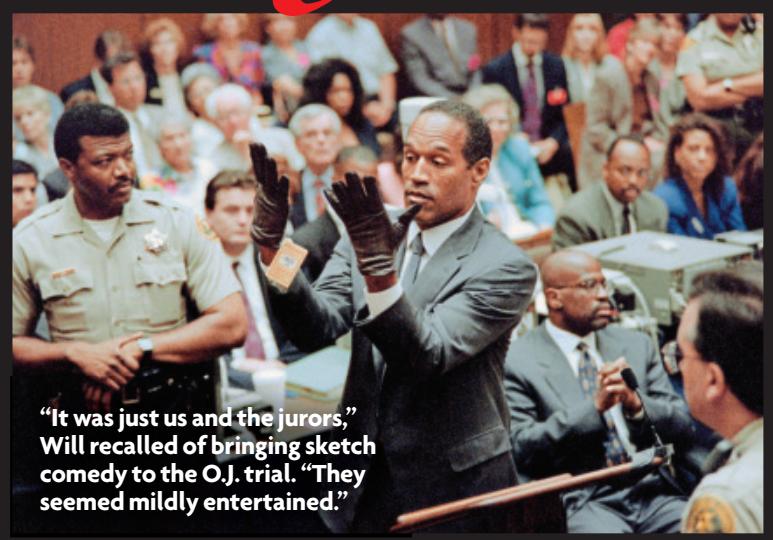

Ultimately, Drew realized that she needed to stop looking back and start moving forward for the sake of her young family. “After the life I planned for my kids didn’t work out—I almost think that was harder than the stuff [I went through] as a kid. It felt a lot more real because it wasn’t just me. It was about these kids that I cared so much about. And then I probably cared so much that I was only giving to them and not taking care of myself. It was a messy, painful, excruciating ‘walk through the fire and come back to life’ kind of trajectory.”

Now she and Will peacefully coparent. As she said on her show, “We’re stuck together for life. We’ve grown a lot through the last 14 years of our union with our kids.” She’s even dipping her toes back in the dating pool. The insider tells Star, “Drew is finally warming up to the idea of dating and putting herself out there. Her friends have been after her to go out and have a good time for so long—they want her to meet some guys, because fun is not overrated.” *

Renée Zellweger, Hugh Grant, Colin Firth

Premieres Thurs., Feb. 13, on Peacock R

Our favorite calamity-prone heroine, Bridget (Zellweger), is back, but now she's no longer a 30-something singleton but a middle-aged single mum — hunky hubby Mark (Firth) was killed on a humanitarian mission, leaving her with two young children. The film opens four years after his death, with Bridget deciding it's time to look for love again. But dating has gotten a lot more complicated since the get-drunk-and-hook-up era of her youth. She awkwardly flirts with her son's teacher (Chiwetel Ejiofor) then gets her cougar on with a much younger toyboy (Leo Woodall), which goes as well as expected. Then her slimy ex Daniel (Grant) reenters the picture — will his charm be enough for her to overlook that time he ditched her in a Thai prison? Whether you're in love or looking for it, Bridget's amorous adventures make a great V-Day treat.

I WILL SURVIVE: THE GLORIA GAYNOR STORY

Joaquina Kalukango, Lance Gross
Premieres Sat., Feb. 8, on Lifetime

Kalukango stars as Gaynor in this biopic that traces the singer's life from her childhood in the Newark, N.J., projects to her triumph as a chart-topping star. While her iconic hit, "I Will Survive," transcended its disco roots to become a feminist and gay anthem, it took Gaynor herself a minute to find the strength to tell her controlling husband (Gross) to "go on and go, walk out the door!" One of Lifetime's movies celebrating Black History Month, I Will Survive is not only inspiring but also danceable! (Gaynor produced and composed a new song for the film.)

WE LIVE IN TIME

Andrew Garfield, Florence Pugh
Premieres Fri., Feb. 7, on Max R

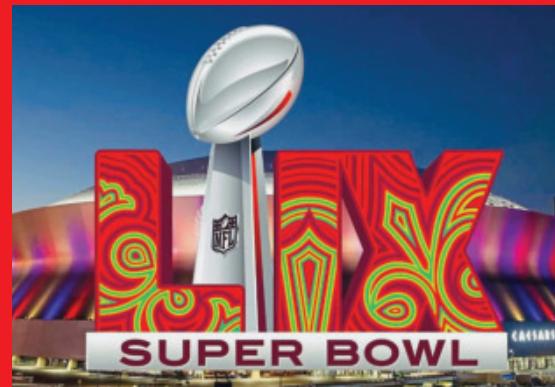

Almut (Pugh), a chef, and Tobias (Garfield), a Weetabix cereal salesman, meet most un-cutely — she accidentally hits him with her car. All is forgiven when she apologizes, but that's only the beginning of the bad luck for these star-crossed lovers. Soon after, she's diagnosed with ovarian cancer but opts for a partial hysterectomy so she can give Tobias the child he longs for. When the cancer returns, she must choose between debilitating treatments or living her best life. Pugh and Garfield's palpable chemistry and winning performances save the flick from syrupy soap-opera territory.

SUMMER HOUSE

Premieres Wed., Feb. 12,
at 9 p.m. ET, on Bravo

Lindsay Hubbard and Carl Radke fought all last season while they were still a couple, so after their dramatic on-camera breakup, it definitely won't be kumbaya vibes when they're reunited in the Hamptons share house — especially now that Lindsay's had a child by an as-yet-unidentified baby daddy. East Coast Bickersons Amanda Batula and Kyle Cooke and Bravo's now-defunct crossover couple, Paige DeSorbo and Southern Charm's Craig Conover, are also back for a summer of wild parties, bottomless booze, regrettable choices and addictive viewing.

SUPER BOWL LIX

Airs Sun., Feb. 9, at 6:30 ET, on Fox

It's the déjà vu Super Bowl, with the Chiefs and the Eagles facing off once again. This is must-see TV, whether you're an NFL superfan or a Swiftie who just wants to watch Taylor watch Travis Kelce. Even if you hate football, it's worth tuning in for the commercials, which often generate more talk — and controversy — than the game, and, of course, for the halftime show. This year the headliner is Kendrick Lamar, who's sacked Drake more times than any NFL lineman has tackled a QB and is reportedly planning to perform some diss tracks at the game. Whether you like your hits physical or verbal, there's something for everyone this year.

YOUR STARS

Week of Feb. 17–Feb. 23

By Jennifer Angel

AQUARIUS JAN. 20–FEB. 18

If your body is telling you to slow down, pay attention. When you burn out, it's not good for you personally or professionally. Changes in your love life may be out of your control but can be a step in the right direction. Be optimistic.

PISCES

FEB. 19–MARCH 20

Love planet Venus brings romance closer to your heart; be confident and self-assured, knowing that you deserve the best. With money, don't allow your emotions to rule a decision that could affect your future happiness. To control stress, take time out for yourself.

ARIES

MARCH 21–APRIL 19

Love at first sight is all very possible! But before giving away the keys to your heart, come down from cloud nine. For the time being, be realistic when it concerns money. And if you need information, ask someone who knows what they're talking about for help.

TAURUS

APRIL 20–MAY 20

Stay tuned: Big news regarding a financial development is heading your way. Lady luck is on your side; you're in the right place to meet someone influential. When the going gets tough, don't give up — find another way to win. If looking for love, get out and socialize.

GEMINI

MAY 21–JUNE 20

Make a wish — it might just come true. With your charm gene at an all-time high and your social calendar hot and happening, you could soon be celebrating a new love connection. When it comes to work and money, it's important for you to be in control and trust your instincts.

CANCER

JUNE 21–JULY 22

The universe gives you the green light to improve your life. Opportunities can arise as life speeds up: Pay attention so you don't miss a signpost. Looking for love? Someone amazing could be closer than you think. Seek out a person you have a spiritual connection with.

LEO

JULY 23–AUG. 22

Your life and love decisions indicate what direction your future will take. Think carefully about your choices, but don't get stressed by over-worrying. Venus in your soulmate zone casts her magic spell and can put you on a collision course with romance.

VIRGO

AUG. 23–SEPT. 22

Reports of a major reshuffle at work could indirectly affect you, with the outcome being better than you think. If you're looking for love, find someone who has common interests with you. Friends could make a dynamite introduction during this time, so get out and about to socialize.

LIBRA

SEPT. 23–OCT. 22

If you need to tell someone how you feel, try putting it in writing. Don't read too much into a rumor; before jumping to conclusions, take time to find out the facts. At work, being passionate about your job can cause a domino effect of good luck.

ED SHEERAN
turns 34 on Feb. 17

SCORPIO

OCT. 23–NOV. 21

When you introduce a new love to family and friends, don't worry about what they think — what you think is more important! Don't gamble with your hard-earned cash; it's not the time to take risks. Get more information before revealing your hand to someone.

SAGITTARIUS

NOV. 22–DEC. 21

Something you've been waiting for, possibly a creative project, can come through with positive news during this time. You're stepping into the beginning of a new opportunity, one that promises to be good for both your heart and wallet. Act with confidence.

CAPRICORN

DEC. 22–JAN. 19

You have a new financial start, but it's wise to be shrewd with money — both spending and saving — to create a positive change. A flash of inspiration breathes new life into a project. New challenges can provide you with a chance to prove yourself.

SQUIRTS WITH SQUIRTS!

Will the Science Guy

Guildford, England, Jan. 29

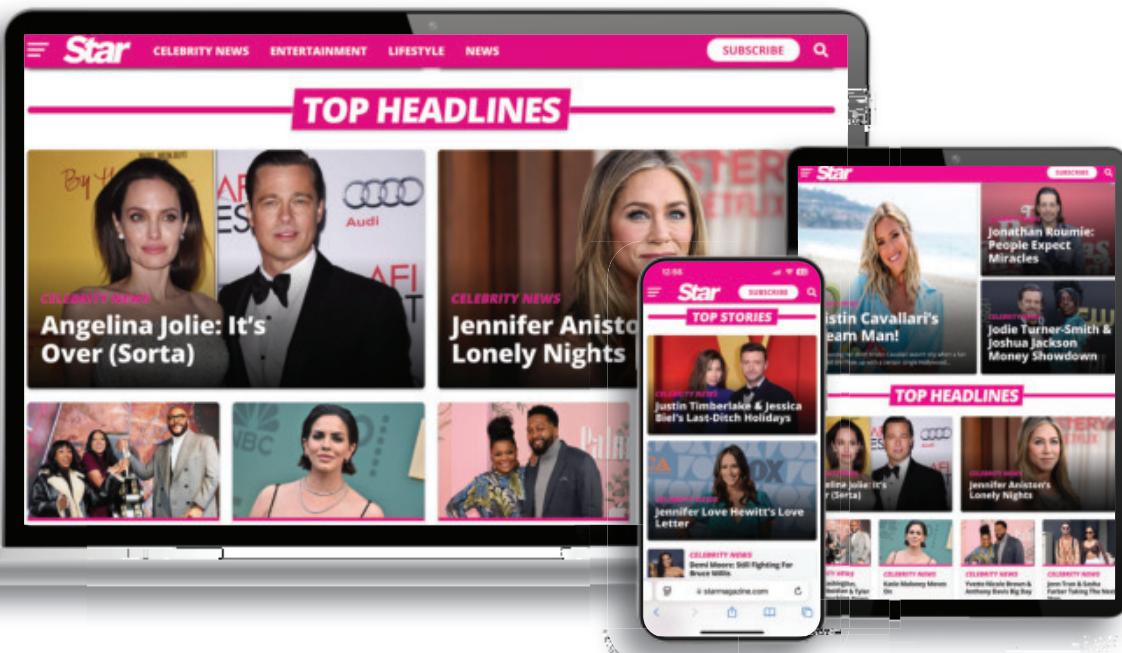

Prince William had a blast during a trip to NatureMetrics, a 2024 Earthshot Prize finalist that helps companies measure their impact on nature and ecosystems. As the future king went rogue, squirting pond-water samples with schoolkids in attendance, he dubbed the day "great fun!" The 42-year-old graduate of Scotland's University of St. Andrews also chatted with scientists about environmental solutions, joking at one point, "Don't get too technical or I won't understand anything you're saying."
